MORRIS IS CANDIDATE FOR RE-ELECTION.

Another entry is formally made this week in the race for Circuit Court Clerk of Fulton county; a new candidate—and not a new candidate. It is J. W. Morris, who shies his hat in the ring.

Mr. Morris not only holds this office now, but for a number of years past has faithfully, satisfactorily and efficiently discharged the duties of circuit court clerk. He asks again the nomination from the Democrats of Fulton county, basing his claims upon his record, and this should by all means be about the best test of a man's worthiness. In all the years Mr. Morris has held this office, his official acts have never been criticised, although they have stood the acid test as applied by the opposition. Others might fill the office as well as the present incumbent, but none will do it better.

The Courier is sure that no mistake will be made if Mr. Morris is re-elected, his long experience better fits him for the place and he has not failed to improve with experience. His familiarity with the business of the office enables him to "lay his hands" right on any matter in connection with it, and his knowledge of legal affairs is a guarantee against fatal errors, which could easily be made by the uninitiated. His friends throughout the county will, no doubt, see that he is given the same consideration on August 7th that he has received at preceding primaries.

$5.05 PER MINUTE.

Rockefeller's close observants say he gave money at the rate of $5.05 for every minute during 1914. The sum totaled $1,420,218. That's some giving, but when it is told that his income is over $50 a minute it will be seen that he could give several times the amount and have it handed back to him many fold by the users of coal oil, gasoline, and the other commodities on which he has a lead pipe cinch.

QUICKER RESULTS.

An exchange is responsible for the following: "After praying for forty years for a baby, a New Jersey couple placed a small want ad in a newspaper and that night a bouncing boy was left at their door step. Prayer is all right if you aren't in a hurry, but for quick results use printer's ink."

NIGHTRIDER CONVICTED.

P. C. Jenkins, a prominent citizen of Butler county, and alleged leader of the "Possum Hunters" who are charged with having whipped members of the Webster family, near Morgantown, was Saturday morning found guilty and sentenced to four years and a day in the penitentiary.

GROCERYMAN ASSIGNS.

H. McColligan, conducting a grocery store in the old McElroy stand, just west of the county jail, made an assignment last week; Judge F. S. Moore being named as assignee. The assets are given at $225.87 and the liabilities at $595.00.

Frank Von Borries and family left Sunday for Montgomery, Ala. Mrs. Von Borries will visit home folks in that city while Mr. Von Borries will visit several southern cities in the interest of the Mengel Box Co. They will be gone about three weeks.

ROAD EXPERT HERE. BIG RALLY TONIGHT.

The opening gun of the Fulton county good roads campaign will be heard at Hickman tonight. This was the decision reached at a joint session of the Fiscal court and the permanent good roads committee at Fulton Monday afternoon.

Engineer B. H. Burrell, of the U. S. office of public roads, is here from Washington, and will give a free, illustrated lecture on this subject. There will also be other speakers on this program. If you are in favor of good roads, come out, if opposed, come. This is purely an educational campaign and will be worth your while.

A similar rally will be held at Cayce Friday night and at Fulton Monday night. Then follows meetings at the various school houses throughout the county, but dates for these engagements cannot be given as yet.

As a matter of information, it might be said that Mr. Burrell is a senior engineer and thoroughly conversant with the subject of road building in all its various phases. He has had twenty-two years experience. He comes to us as a man of experience rather than theory, and will gladly answer any question you may care to ask, either publicly or in private, as regards the road business. The committee is indeed fortunate in securing the services of a government man. His business is not to help carry the bond issue, but to conduct an educational campaign, to give the same uniform, courteous treatment to both sides. He will remain with us until May 22.

In the course of his remarks at Fulton he made the following points:

Hard roads are not a matter of sentiment, but a purely business proposition; especially to the farmer.

Fulton county people should be given a chance to do the work and keep the money spent for roads at home.

The width of roads should be governed by the amount of traffic. There are two standard widths—9 feet and 15 feet (that is the gravel surface). Nine foot roads must have a 4½ foot shoulder.

Gravel should be put on to depth of nine inches and rolled down to six. Two rollings are necessary. Gravel same depth at outer edge as center of road. Properly laid, a wagon carrying a ton load will make no track—merely a mark on the gravel—an hour after hardest rain.

At the very outset, money should be set aside for maintaining the dirt roads which do not receive gravel.

Cost of building, drainage, maintenance, wear on horse shoes and wagon tires, etc., will be given tonight.

The committees from Hickman and Fulton elected Dr. E. H. Reed, of Fulton, as joint chairman, and Mr. Davis, of Fulton, of secretary at that city and Doyle Jurney as secretary for the committee at Hickman.

In the original plan, the road from Cayce to Jordan was omitted from the gravel schedule. This matter was taken up Monday, at the request of Esq. Atteberry, and the committee is now figuring on recommending it as a part of the gravel system.

The Courier invites its readers to send in any questions they may desire to have answered on this road subject. We have arranged with Mr. Burrell to answer them through the columns of the paper. Sign your name to your questions. Your name will not be printed, but assigned communications will go to the waste basket. The object of this question and answer column is obvious, and we ask that your questions be pertinent and to the point.

Whether Fulton county will go forward or backward in the matter of public roads depends upon the next thirty days work. The committee is doing all it can to make the proposition clear; there is no desire to hoodwink or cover up anything. Our interests are mutual. If the project is good, it is good for everybody; if bad, it is also bad for everybody. Let's get at the facts.

The various municipal elections at neighboring towns reminds us that Hickman will also elect commitmen this year—in the fall.

Miss Nettie Sullivan, of Champaign, Ill., returned home Saturday after a short stay with Mrs. J. L. Amberg.

Esq. R. L. Jackson and wife returned from Hot Springs, Sunday, where they spent a couple of weeks. Mrs. Jackson seems much improved in health.

B. Hughes and wife spent Sunday and Monday with relatives at Mayfield.

J. A. Walden, editor of Judge, says George Bingham, a Graves county boy, of the Hogwallow Kentuckian, is the most original humorist America has produced since Artemus Ward.

Editors Courier:

In the discussion of this road proposition, I have no axe to grind, political, business or otherwise. My sole and only purpose is that an intelligent understanding of it may be reached. I have insisted that "The Man Who Knows" give details of the kind of road that could be constructed in this county under present conditions from $1400 per mile. Thus far he has carefully refrained from committing himself to a road of any certain width, thickness or construction. This should not be an unreasonable request to make of a man of his experience in committee service and road construction in various places. I do not believe he mentioned the names of the places but that does not make any particular difference. What we want to know is what kind of road that $1400 will build but "also and alack" he seems to be more interested in getting the county to vote bonds than in the kind of road we will get. In fact he says "we must cut our coat according to our cloth," which I understand to mean, vote the bonds, then build the best macadam road we can with the proceeds. I may be lacking in discernment but it appears to me that would place us in rather an awkward if not in a comical situation. But "The Man Who Knows" thinks it not in keeping with good taste to crack a "musty chestnut" even occasionally in this discussion. So with great solemnity and long-facedness, I will proceed to analyze this cloth proposition. If we should meet a man wearing a fine broadcloth coat and, as the school boy would say, cut for high water, the buttons and buttonholes having passed below the horizon from each other, his arms held on his back like embryonic wings and scarcely room to breathe, certainly a very serious situation. We ask him why he did not get a coat large enough to wear with comfort and he replies that he only had one piece of goods and had to "cut his coat according to his cloth." By the exercise of a little common sense he could have saved himself this humiliation by deciding to live within his means and wear a comfortable coat of jeans until he is able to buy a larger piece of broadcloth from which to make his coat. Notwithstanding our many had roads last winter it was demonstrated that a dirt road could be maintained free from mud holes and in a condition for autos to travel along it at anytime during the winter. If we cannot build a serviceable and satisfactory macadam road let us do the sensible thing and build dirt roads which can be made serviceable. I will admit "The Man Who Knows" is gifted with more than an ordinary flow of language. He introduced a word in his article which seems destined to become one of his favorite terms as he found several places in which he could use it to advantage. I am a citizen and taxpayer in Fulton county and suppose "The Man Who Knows" is also, though he has not made a statement to that effect and it is my great desire to be at peace with all my neighbors, so in this discussion have carefully refrained from using anything of a personal nature. For insinuating expressions are only calculated to divert the attention from the barrenness of the arguments produced.

"The Man Who Knows" proposes that we put up a forfeit of $10 each. I wish to state that he perhaps was never more greatly mistaken in his man. I do not bet, never have bet, and never expect to engage in gambling of any kind. It may be because I am liking in discrimination, but I see no difference in putting a stake, jack-pot or forfeit it is all gambling. If I have not sufficient reasons to sustain my position I will not seek to hide the fact by proposing to bet I am right.

Our difference in the cost of macadam roads is not so great as "The Man Who Knows" seems to think and had he taken time to figure the results he might have seen. We take the first item. The cost of the rock in Massachusetts is $1.15 per ton on siding. In Dixon county it cost 65 cents but would cost more in Fulton county but he did not say how much. For the purpose of getting an estimate we will put the price at 75 cents, as very reasonable. This is 65 per cent of the cost of what it is there and teams are 63 per cent. Now to put the estimate lower than "The Man Who Knows" even claims we will figure everything at 63 per cent. The average cost of roads in Massachusetts is $6426 per mile. Then our road 15 feet wide would cost $4418, which is just $72 below the estimate for Obion county and $2018 above his estimate. At that rate $1400 would build a road 6 feet and 2 inches wide which is one foot wider than good reasons to believe it could be done. The $100,000 at 4 1/2 per cent is $13,500, and deducted from the $15,000, road fund, leaves $1,500, to keep our roads in repair. According to government report above it will take $5250 to do the work. We have only $1500 which likes $3750 of being enough to do the work according to the most conservative estimate. Strange as it may seem it likes $600 of being enough to do the work according to the lowest estimate "The Man Who Knows" could conscientiously place upon it. If we should build half of our roads 12 feet macadam we would have the same problem to solve.

We have shown by his own figures that the width of that $1400 places we can reach no other conclusion than that they would not add strength to his side of this proposition.

This article will conclude my discussion of the road question unless new matter is introduced in the reply. Thanks to the Courier for courtesies extended.—Taxpayer.

the ordinary wagon tracks. It would take a pretty fair driver to stay on that road. By the time we build the necessary levee along the road from Hickman to Cayce I doubt very much we could build more than a 5 feet road.

As to the upkeep he raised no objections to this quotation, "No one with experience in such matters will contend that a macadam road may generally be maintained at a less cost than a gravel or an earth road." Our roads cost much more but to be reasonable to a fault we will place the cost at $25 per mile. The 210 miles cost at above rate $5250 per year and we have reason to believe the cost is considerably more. This is $3150 more than he allows for upkeep. We must remember that with a 6 feet rock road we will have from 12 to 18 feet of earth alongside to keep in repair. Observation teaches us that during good weather the public will leave the gravel to travel on the earth alongside when it is in condition to do so.

The reason I used 5 per cent in computing interest on the bonds, was because I had been informed by those in position to know that an offer to that effect had been made on conditions the bonds were floated. I am willing to risk the judgment of our bankers in this matter. They are all conservative men and would not make a statement unless they had per mile road cannot possibly be more than 6 feet and 2 inches wide. Just a 6 inch margin on either side of a wagon track. We have shown, and without being called in question, that the upkeep of gravel will equal earth roads. Even by putting it at his own arbitrary price of $10 per mile we like $600 having enough funds to keep the roads in repair. We have reduced the rate of interest to the point where it is just a matter of opinion as to whether the bonds can be successfully floated. In fact, we have just taken the figures as given and admitted by "The Man Who Knows" and carried out the results and we have just a streak of rock for a road and less than a third enough money to keep it in repair. Instead of that boasted million in cold cash, we would be floundering about in the quick sands of debt and unkept roads with little prospects for early relief.

In this discussion "The Man Who Knows" has frequently sought refuge in the quarry at Camden and the roads in Dixon county when suitable material could not be found elsewhere to keep his defense from collapsing. He seems quite familiar with these places and can see no reason why he should not have taken this matter up in detail and give us the benefit of their experience. By his failure to go into details in reference to these

A PREACHER'S LIFE.

A preacher has a hard time. If his hair is gray, he is old. If he is a young man, he hasn't had experience. If he has ten children, he has too many. If he has none, he should, and is not setting a good example. If his wife sings in the choir, she is presuming. If she doesn't, she isn't interested in her husband's work. If a preacher reads from notes, he's a bore. If he speaks extemporaneously, he isn't deep enough. If he stays at home in his study, he doesn't mix with the people. If he is seen around on the streets, he ought to be at home getting up a good sermon. If he calls on a very poor family, he is playing to the grandstand. If he calls at the home of the rich, he is an aristocrat. Whatever he does someone could have told him how to do it better. He has a fine time living off donations which never come in, and promises that never mature. Next to being a country editor, it is an awful life.

COWPEA IS VALUABLE LEGUMINOUS CROP

Cowpea Plant, Showing Ripe Pods.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Any system of agriculture which does not include some leguminous crop will ultimately lessen the productivity of the soil and make necessary the purchase at considerable expense of fertilizers containing nitrogen. On the other hand, the proper use of leguminous crops will maintain or even increase productivity. At the present time the cowpea is probably the most valuable legume for the cotton belt. It is to the South what red clover is to the North and alfalfa to the West.

Not only does the cowpea benefit the soil by adding nitrogen to it, but it can be made to supply southern markets with much of the hay which is now shipped in from the North and West. Thus it aids in the production of live stock, without which it is impossible to secure the maximum returns from any farm.

These facts have been familiar to progressive farmers for years, but the high price of seed in the past prevented as widespread a use of the crop as was desirable. Improved machinery, however, has now done much to remove this difficulty and may well do more in the future. When harvested for seed, the crop should be cut with a mower or self rake reaper when half or more of the pods are ripe. After it has become thoroughly dry, it may be thrashed with an ordinary grain separator, with some modifications, with a two-cylinder cowpea thrasher or with a one-cylinder special machine which a number of ingenious devices make the most satisfactory of all.

Exclusive of the crop's value in improving the soil, cowpeas are most useful as hay. Good cowpea hay has a high percentage of digestible protein—nearly four times that of timothy hay—and as a feed is very nearly as valuable as alfalfa or wheat bran. When it includes a fair number of ripe pods it has been found satisfactory when fed alone to stock at work, and can be used very successfully as a maintenance ration for horses, mules, cattle, sheep and even hogs. When corn and cottonseed meal are high priced, experiments indicate that cowpea hay can be substituted to advantage. In the production of milk and butter it appears that one and one-fourth pounds of chopped pea hay is equivalent to a pound of wheat bran and three pounds to one of cottonseed meal. Splendid results are also obtained from feeding the seed, either whole or in broken pieces, to poultry, though at the prices that have hitherto prevailed this is scarcely practicable.

In the production of cowpea hay difficulty is sometimes experienced in curing the large growth of succulent vines. For this reason cowpeas are frequently grown in mixtures, a practice which makes the curing much easier. Sorghum is a favorite crop for this purpose and its use usually results in increasing the yield of hay considerably. Millet, soy beans and Jobson grass are also used.

At present, however, cowpeas are most frequently grown with corn, since the farmer secures in this way a corn crop, sufficient seed for the next season, and either a hay crop or a certain amount of grazing for his stock. On many dairy farms the cowpea is grown with corn in order to make ensilage, for which it has proved excellent. Though it is sometimes advisable, the use of cowpeas for pasture is not, as a rule, the best farm practice. Unless care is exercised, bloating, especially in bad weather, may result. The small expense involved is a powerful inducement, and when the hay is grown with corn it is frequently grazed by hogs.

Detailed information in regard to the planting and harvesting of the crop is contained in farmers' bulletin 318, "Cowpeas," of the department of agriculture, which will be sent free on request. The bulletin also discusses the merits of the various varieties, and suggests the use of the crop in some one of the following rotations:

(a) Cotton, three years; corn and cowpeas fourth year, and then cotton again. This is all right on the better soils of the South, but the cotton should be planted only two years in succession on the poorer soils.

(b) Wheat or oats with cowpeas each season after the removal of the grain crop, the land being seeded to grain in the fall, making two crops a year from the same land.

(c) Cotton first year; corn and cowpeas, second year; winter oats or wheat, followed by cowpeas as a catch crop, third year, and then cotton again.

FEED COTTONSEED TO HOGS

Hoar's Dairyman Says No Uniformly Successful Method of Feeding Has Yet Been Found.

In response to the query "What experience have you had in feeding cooked cottonseed to hogs and young pigs?" Hoar's Dairyman makes the following reply:

We have had no experience in feeding cooked cottonseed, nor do we recall any experimentation along this line. No uniformly successful method of feeding cottonseed or cottonseed meal to swine has yet been found. The poisonous effect of cottonseed meal is said to be due to its content of pyrophosphoric acid, which is developed when the seed is subjected to great heat. Reasoning along this line we would be inclined to believe that cooked cottonseed would not prove a safe feed for pigs. However, the Louisiana station states that its experiments do not uphold this theory, and that the poisonous effect of the cottonseed is due to some other factor whose violence is decreased by heating. The seed is held to be more poisonous than the meal. It is probably safe to feed cottonseed meal when it does not constitute more than one-fifth to a quarter of the grain ration and is fed at this rate for not more than thirty days.

SUBSOILING MAY BE HARMFUL

Increase in Yield Does Not Pay for Work Done—Bad Practice to Advocate, Says Expert.

(By O. O. CHITTENDEN, Oklahoma Experiment Station.)

The practice of subsoiling is receiving a good many notices in the press at this time. It is advocated particularly on tight soils and under drought conditions.

A good many of the stations in different parts of the United States have conducted many experiments to determine the benefit derived from this practice. Very seldom, if ever, does the increase in yield pay for the work done, and we, therefore, advise against subsoiling under most conditions. In some cases subsoiling may even be harmful.

We have been unable to find any records indicating that subsoiling will pay. It seems to us, therefore, to be a bad practice to advocate, even if to theory it does sound well.

Subsoiling is usually performed by an implement made of a straight blade with a shoe on the bottom. This implement is run in the bottom of the furrow and follows immediately after an ordinary plow. It does not turn the soil, but merely loosens it. It takes as much power to pull the subsoil plow as it does an ordinary plow.

Slit Sevea Doctor's Bills.

Slilage makes the very best winter pasture for live stock and brings about more nearly than anything else summer conditions. The farmer with a good supply of silage will have little need for the veterinarian. When a pit silo can be had at a cost of fifteen to twenty dollars, each farmer should have one.

Menace to Dairy Business.

The breeder who multiplies defects and perpetuates scrubby pedigree stock is a worse menace to the dairy business than the man who keeps scrubs under their true colors.

TWELVE CITIES WITH OVER 40,000 NEGRO POPULATION.

There are 21 cities in the United States with more than 40,000 colored people, according to the census of 1910. Washington, D. C., contains the largest number, 94,446, while New York is second, with 91,709. The third largest colored population in any one locality is in New Orleans, La., where 89,262 reside. Baltimore has 84,749, and Philadelphia has 84,459. The seven remaining cities contain the following number: Memphis, 52,441; Birmingham, 25,305; Atlanta, 51,900; Richmond, 46,733; Chicago, 44,103; St. Louis, 43,960; Louisville, 40,522. It will thus be seen that New York contains a larger population of negroes than New Orleans and very nearly twice as many as Richmond.

A JOYLESS JOY RIDE.

The first baseball split engendered in Tiptonville this spring met with reverse, when Guy Nailling, Will Hunt and Phil Campbell, drawn by T. P. The anguish caused by missing the ball game was only a minor pain, compared with the one endured throughout the night in a lonely bottom when the automobile got stuck and the quartet remained out all night in the darkness.—Tiptonville News.

TREAT TUBERCULOSIS.

The need of a private tuberculosis sanitarium at Louisville has been met by the opening of such an institution known as Hazelwood Sanitarium. There are five buildings, one of which is specially designed for the treatment of advanced cases. Beginning consumptives will be treated in the other four buildings, which are of the cottage type. Dr. Ap Morgan Vance is head of the advisory board, which is composed of physicians from all parts of the State. Dr. H. E. Prather, of this city, is the member of the board from this district. Examination of patients before admission will not be generally required, but the medical board has suggested to physicians of the State that preliminary arrangements for admission be made before persons who live far away are permitted to start.

The district convention of Christian churches of this district convened at the Christian church in this city last Thursday, with a number of delegates in attendance—in fact the attendance was the best in several years. An interesting program was carried out, a number of papers were read that were very much enjoyed. The reports made by the delegates showed that the church was in a healthy growing condition.

County School Notes

By Miss Virginia Luten
County Supt.

Consolidated Schools.

The term "consolidated school" is no longer a new one. For a number of years the idea of consolidation has gained favor in all parts of the country where it is at all practical.

A consolidated school is generally understood to be one that has been formed by combining several small districts and in which two or more teachers are employed. The larger ones have a high school department. The location is generally in the open country or the edge of some small village. Such a school located in a rather thickly settled community of average wealth can give the children of that territory as good advantages as can be offered by a first class graded school, and better than a weak graded school.

A graded school has five teachers, levies its own tax, provides its own high school, and the boundary can not extend more than 2½ miles from the school building. A consolidated school has one trustee, is a part of the county school system, pays the county school tax and receives the same and from the county that other subdistricts receive, and the boundary may extend as far from the school building as it is practicable for the children to be brought to school. If transportation wagons are provided, or the term extended, it is generally done by local taxation instead of private subscription. The majority of these schools provide public transportation for the pupils, but a few do not as they cover a small area. Children living within one mile of the school usually walk and others are provided with school wagons.

Some of the main advantages of consolidated schools are as follows:

1—Each teacher instead of having eight grades and about twenty-five classes a day has fewer grades and longer recitation periods, thus being able to do better work and giving each child more instruction. A community that favors consolidation will generally extend the term, hence it is easier to get well trained teachers and keep them.

2—In small schools the grades from 4th to 8th have such few pupils that it is difficult to arouse interest and enthusiasm.

3—In a small district there are not enough older pupils for amiable games, and the school spirit and interest that is found in larger groups is lacking. Older pupils very often drop out of school largely for this reason. Almost without exception the attendance has been much better in consolidated schools than in the subdistricts before consolidation.

4—Better equipment, library, and musical advantages may be had.

5—A large consolidated school located in a rural community can better arrange its course of study to suit the needs of an agricultural people.

In discussing consolidation we might call attention to the new school at Crutchfield. While this was organized as a graded instead of a consolidated school, yet the same factors that have developed it will generally develop a consolidated school. The attendance is much better than it was in two small districts. There are more older pupils in school, term is longer, and pupils are doing much better work. Ask the pupils who live the greatest distance from the school if they would like to go back to the old plan. Ask the patrons who are paying a 35c tax if they are getting value received?

The number of consolidated schools in our State increases each year. In almost every case the community has been satisfied with the results. Section 438 of the school law is as follows:

"That the County Board of Education is hereby empowered to lay off a homology, including a number of subdistricts, and submit to the voters in that boundary the proposition of a tax sufficient to provide for consolidation of the schools within that boundary and for transportation of pupils to and from said consolidated school, and may provide in districts consolidated under existing laws, by local taxation or otherwise for the transportation of pupils of the district to and from schools, and such appropriation and taxation for said purposes."

of transporting children is hereby validated as it had been previously expressed in the phrase for local taxation and that where subdistricts have already been voted in said consolidated districts for local expenses, the term "local expenses" shall be construed to include the transportation of children in such cases. Said proposition for taxation may be submitted to the voters at the regular election for school trustees or at any other time decided upon by the County Board of Education, provided that not less than thirty days' notice be given of said election.

HENRY BRASHEARS GETS NINETY NINE YEARS.

Henry Brashears, charged with killing Luther Sisk in the bottom opposite Hickman, in Mississippi county, last fall, was found guilty of murder in the Circuit Court at Charleston last Friday and sentenced to ninety nine years in penitentiary.

On Thursday, September 10, 1914, two or three of the timber workers were discussing the position of whether there was any more timber to be worked up. Brashears told them there was several day's work in a strip of timber near by and volunteered to go after noon and show them where it was.

Sisk and Brashears had had some previous trouble, growing out of their indulgence in gambling, and two or three witnesses testified Brashears had said he would have killed Sisk in a quarrel they had a few days previous in Cairo, and that he would get him yet; that he would catch Sisk napping and would "get him."

On the Thursday referred to, the evidence showed the two men had been gambling that morning and Sisk had won all the money in the game.

When it was over Sisk counted his money and had $500 and Brashears spoke to him and asked him if Mrs. Sisk did not have $500, to which Sisk replied that she had one hundred dollars in cash in the house. A witness testified that Sisk asked him to go hunting that evening.

News Snapshots Of the Week

The baseball season opened April 14. President Wilson started the game between the Washingtons and Yankees. Spring activity was seen in Europe, as the French army made decided advances. The Germans sent heavy reinforcements to aid of Austrians in the Carpathians. The Kronprinz Wilhelm, German sea raider, entered Newport News, reporting she sank four-teen vessels. Count von Bernstorff secured our government as being unfair in its attitude as a neutral. Villa surrounded Carrizatlan and General Huerta entered United States; these incidents enlivened Mexican news. The Riggs bank of Washington accused J. S. Williams, comptroller of currency, of conspiracy to wreck bank. Rear Admiral Fiske resigned as adviser to secretary of navy.

Immediately after noon Brashears and two or three other men started to look at the timber. Brashears said they could work in and in leaving the camp, passed by Sisk's tent. Sisk was standing before the tent and asked him if he was going hunting with him. Lin said he was going to look at some timber, and the men proceeded not more than forty yards when Brashears stopped and said: "There is no use to go and look at the timber as I am satisfied it would do no good. They would not go, he said. He was going back and go hunting with Sisk."

In a few minutes those two men left the camp with their guns. Two witnesses testified that these two men were seen in the woods about three-fourths of a mile from where the trunk of a timber being was found on the Sunday following.

That was the last seen of Sisk, alive. Brashears returned that evening about sundown, alone, and two witnesses testified that he was wearing only a knit undershirt. He repaired to his tent put his shells in his valise, his gun under the cot, and washed and put on a clean shirt. While there, he was asked by members of the camp where Sisk was and he replied that Sisk would not return, as he had gone off with a stranger they had met in the woods, who told Sisk that he had a shanty boat and two women on it, and that they would go down the river.

Sunday the trunk of a human being was found along one of the bayous in the dense woods. The head was gone, body nearly nude and large holes under each arm. By the side of the body was found part of his jumper, his hat, his gun, his watch, his knife, his pocketbook.

ALLIES PRICE OF PEACE SCOFFED BY GERMANY.

Great Britain, France and Russia are unwilling to end the war unless Germany and Austria-Hungary definitely and officially sue for peace.

This is the answer of the allies to the statement of the peace terms Germany will consider which was made known unofficially last week.

The attitude of the allies has been communicated to the official representatives in Washington and became known Friday.

The price of peace which the allies contemplate demanding of Germany and Austria comprises:

Evacuation of Belgium and restoration thereof of complete sovereignty.

Payment to Belgium of an indemnity to compensate that nation for the havoc wrought by the German invasion.

Cession by Germany of Alsace and Lorraine to France and the payment of an indemnity for the taxation of French territory.

Cession to Russia of German Poland, Galicia, and possibly additional Austrian territory.

Cession to Serbia of Bosnia and Herzegovina.

Division of the German colonies in Africa among the allies.

If Germany, in setting forth the peace terms, it would consider, thought that the allies were weakening there is no indication of such a development in this latest outline of the triple entente.

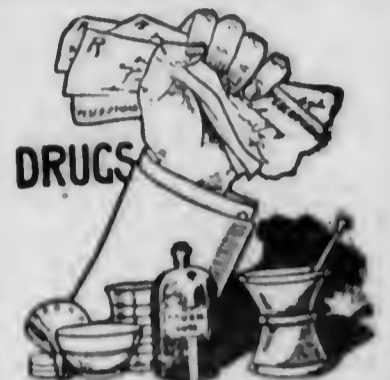

The peace terms of the allies here presented are even more comprehensive than any hitherto enumerated by the enemies of Germany.

The allies appear to be even more defiant of Germany now than ever before.

German officials here characterized as ridiculous and extravagant the terms on which the allies say they are willing to end the conflict. According to the Germans these demands for cession of German and Austrian territory and for the payment of huge indemnities are put forth at this time purely for effect generally and particularly to counteract reports of the exhaustion of the British and French forces.

In any event the terms of the allies, according to the Germans, contain a large surplussage of claims thrown in for trading purposes.

As the people get a better understanding of the operation of the new State road law and its possibilities to them, the enthusiasm for good roads grows. They are talking of it in every village and hamlet and planning to get out of it all that is to be had. Within five years we will have a new Kentucky as the result of the permanent roads that will be under construction from county to county on every public thoroughfare. In the more progressive counties the work will be completed in less time.

M'Millan's Juja Farm

OUT in British East Africa, almost directly under the equator, lies Juja Farm, the immense ranch owned by William N. McMillan. After twenty years of exploration and adventure, he has settled down there to the relatively quiet life of a farmer and hunter, and his greatest excitement now comes in the entertainment of some noted hunter of big game, like Theodore Roosevelt, the sultan of Zanzibar, Lord Londsdale, Aga Khan and Chase Osborn of Michigan.

The 40,000 acres of Juja Farm, and the smaller 15,000-acre holdings of Mrs. McMillan, Mwa Farm, some 15 miles away, stand 5,500 feet above sea level, on the great Mwa escarpment of Eastern Africa, 325 miles inland from Mombasa, principal British African port in the Indian ocean.

Here, in a long, low, one-story farmhouse, with vine-covered verandas and numerous outbuildings, Mr. McMillan lives the life of a British landed proprietor, in almost feudal splendor, ruling the natives residing on his holdings, hunting the elephant, the rhinoceros and the lion, and protecting his herds and flocks and people from their ravages. On his broad acres, the lordly lion and his vicious spouse, king it over their fellow creatures, here are rhinoceros, hideous hyena and beautiful leopard, here graceful gazelle and powerful, ungainly gnus, alert and wary, cross the endless flats, from the vine-covered veranda of the low-beamed house can be seen black and white striped zebra and ruddy harebeest, reed buck and waterbuck, immense eland and tiny dikdik, and all the other half hundred antelope varieties that disport on the equatorial plains. In the papyrus marshes dotting the bosom of the swamps and rimming every seagreen lake, the terrible part is under cultivation, but the wide fields of sprouting maize, the great stretches of sisal hemp and coffee, the clustering blossoms of the American orchard and the sweet fragrance of the gardens all testify to the wealth and generosity of the soil of the farmstead. Cattle and sheep, horses and monkeys graze in the thick lush grass of the high slopes, beside the queer, beehive huts of the natives, under the care of Masai shepherds.

Buffalo Most Dangerous.

Unlike Mr. Roosevelt, who has expressed the opinion that the lion is the most dangerous of African animals to hunt, and Sir Samuel Baker and other mighty hunters, who yield the palm to the elephant, Mr. McMillan, after almost 15 years' experience, unhesitating places the water buffalo as the most dangerous foe to human life, when wounded and brought to bay by the huntsman.

The rhinoceros, in Mr. McMillan's opinion is of little actual danger to an experienced and thoroughly alert man. Possessed, apparently, of the most savage and erratic temper of any of the larger animals, it can see but poorly out of those red, piglike eyes, being scarcely able to distinguish a man at a short distance away. Then, when he charges, he runs blindly, throwing his huge bulk forward in a straight line from which he seldom deviates. The hunter, if he be surefooted and collected should his fire fail to stop the gigantic beast can easily evade him by dodging, stepping aside when the charge is almost upon him, and there is but little likelihood of the rhino returning to the attack.

These animals are much given to wanton attacks, seemingly running amuck at times. On one such occasion, a rhino came out of the nearby brush and charged wildly through the Juja Farm garden. Coming upon one buffalo and the queer, strange looking wart hogs make sinuous lanes of passage while in the deeper waters lie sluggish hippopotami and voracious, insatiable crocodiles. The mining ostrich preens itself among the flat-topped acacias, and in the taller, sturdier mimosa growths the giraffe keeps keen-eyed vigil for the approaching foe.

Overhead, from the taller branches and under foot in the jungle growths, come the trills and calls and reed-like notes of the bewildering wealth of bird life that fills the tropic forests, while threading serenely through this nature's wonderland, pass to and fro the natives of the estate, the well-known naked savage, primitive Wakumba and unsmiling serious Kikuyu, warlike Masai and more civilized Mohammedan Somali.

An Army of Servants.

There are some 600 natives of the various tribes employed on Juja Farm: house servants and farm hands, laborers, horse boys, shepherds, porters and askari or native soldiery. Over these Mr. McMillan rules with a kindly rein, being mayor and chief of police, board of city fathers and municipal justice, all bound up in one stalwart, impressive presence, for under the colonial system of British government, as a landed proprietor, holding acreage under purchase from the crown, and more than 15 miles from town or other seat of permanent justice, he is endowed with magisterial powers, and may settle all cases of minor misdemeanors, theft and petty savage knavery which carry with them no deprivation of liberty.

Of this vast plantation only a small part is under cultivation, but the wide fields of sprouting maize, the great stretches of sisal hemp and coffee, the clustering blossoms of the American orchard and the sweet fragrance of the gardens all testify to the wealth and generosity of the soil of the farmstead. Cattle and sheep, horses and monkeys graze in the thick lush grass of the high slopes, beside the queer, beehive huts of the natives, under the care of Masai shepherds.

Future of East Africa.

Mr. McMillan sees a great future ahead for that part of Africa in which he is settled. Though at present there are dangerous beasts that prey upon the flesh of man and he finds fresh dangers wherever he may go, overhead and underneath, foes that crawl and bite and sting and poison, that kill his flocks and ruin his growing grain, yet for all that he is positive in his belief that it is essentially a white man's country. It is almost directly under the equator, yet with its high altitude, its clear, cool nights, and its dry, bracing atmosphere, there is but little of the tropic sicknesses, malaria is unknown, the terrible sleeping sickness is being rapidly eliminated, and the soil is so amazingly fertile that in a few generations it should prove the granary of the world. Almost any ordinary European and American fruit or vegetable will flourish there; cotton is already being extensively cultivated along the coast lowlands; sisal hemp, corn and apples have proved most successful crops, and he thinks the coffee of the future will all ship out of Mombasa and other East African ports.

CRAWFORD A SUICIDE.

The body of Robt. L. Crawford was found in a thicket on a lonely island near Memphis Saturday. The young salesman disappeared from his home in Louisville Monday, April 12, after receiving a promotion. A pistol in his hand showed that he had killed himself. His suicide was probably on Friday, as he had by him a Memphis paper telling of the arrival of his brother in that city to search for him. His death is a mystery. His body was taken to Louisville, where his parents and wife and child reside. He was employed by the Mangel Box Co., and known to quite a few Hickmanites.

Church Going.

Through the courtesy of Messrs. Speer & Sexton, the Rector will publish a brief paragraph under the above heading each week. Watch for it, perhaps some of the remarks may fit you.

In the Hebrew nation of old, no community was allowed to have a synagogue for worship, unless ten families would pledge themselves to be represented there at each Sabbath's Day service. Either personally or by others to take their place the family seat or pew in God's sanctuary was to be occupied by someone to render praise and gratitude to a gracious Providence. The dignity and majesty of the Great Creator was not to be slighted by a slighted worship, an empty pew was considered an insult to Almighty God and was not to be tolerated. The remiss family had this responsibility as personally theirs.

Which attitude of mind is right, that of modern times with its apparently utter indifference on this point, or the reverent regard for God and His worship as evinced among the Hebrews of Old Testament times? Ponder this question and answer it for yourself.

C. A. Watson, Hickman, Ky., says: "For years I had kidney complaint. I suffered from pains in the small of my back, which were always more severe if stooped or lifted. My back ached at night and in the morning, was very lame. I tired easily and occasionally had nervous spells. Headaches bothered me and I was subject to dizzy spells, during which there was a blurring of my sight. When I caught cold, it settled on my kidneys. At such times, the passage of the kidney secretions became too frequent. This was particularly annoying during the night and was often obliged to get up several times. Learning of Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a box at Helm & Ellison's Drug Store. Two days after using them, I got great relief. After I had taken one box, I was cured."

WHEN THE WAR BEGINS.

Earl Kitchener, the great British General, was quoted during the past winter as saying "I don't know how long the war will last, but am sure that it will begin next May."

May will be here in a couple of weeks and the "war expert" look for the liveliest battles ever known to open along the lines—east and west—with swarms of submarines and thousands of flying machines. It is believed that England will be furiously attacked by German Zeppelin balloons dropping bombs and thousands of English guns will try to bring them down. Every nation will go in to win this summer regardless of the loss of human life.

ELECTION NOTICE.

In obedience to the order of Fulton County Court entered at the March term, on Monday, March 8, 1915, notice is hereby given that an election will be held and poll taken at the regular and usual voting places in Fulton county, Kentucky, on the 22nd day of May, 1915, between the hours of six o'clock a. m. and four o'clock p. m. on said date at which election all legal voters residing in said county shall be given an opportunity to vote by secret ballot on the question whether or not the Fiscal Court of Fulton county shall issue $300,000.00 in bonds for the purpose of building roads and bridges in Fulton county, Kentucky.

The order calling said election and directing the manner in which same shall be held is in words and figures as follows:—

STATE OF KENTUCKY, FULTON COUNTY COURT, March term, Monday, March 8, 1915.

This day came Enoch Browder and 220 others, citizens and legal voters who are freeholders of Fulton county, Kentucky, and petitioned the court to make an order on his order book directing the officers of the election in all the voting precincts in said county to open a poll on Saturday, May 22nd, 1915, to take the sense of the legal voters of said county upon the question: "Shall the Fiscal Court of Fulton county issue bonds to the amount of 5 per cent of the taxable property of said county, as shown by the assessor's books as of September, 1914, for the purpose of building roads and bridges in Fulton county?"

Wherefore it is ordered by court that the officers of the election in all the voting precincts of said county will open a poll on Saturday, May 22, 1915, which date is not earlier than sixty days after said application was lodged with the Judge of this court, to take the sense of the legal voters of said county upon the question: "Shall the Fiscal Court of Fulton county issue bonds to the amount of five per cent of the taxable property of said county as shown by the assessor's books as of September, 1914, for the purpose of building roads and bridges in Fulton county?"

Bailey Huddleston, Sheriff of Fulton county, is directed to advertise said election and the object thereof, for at least thirty days next before the day thereof, in some newspaper having the largest circulation in the county and also by printed hand bills posted up at not less than four public places in each voting precinct in the county and at the court house door.

The county clerk is directed to have printed upon the official ballot the question: "Are you in favor of issuing $300,000.00 in bonds for the purpose of building roads and bridges in Fulton county, Kentucky?" Said clerk will leave two places upon the right of said question; one for votes favoring the issue, to be designated by the word "Yes," and one for votes opposing the issue to be designated by the word "No;" said ballot shall be printed as provided for in the general election laws, Sec. 1459 Kentucky Statutes. All legal voters of said county shall be privileged to vote at said election, and the same officers who hold the regular election shall hold this election. Said election shall in all respects be held in accordance with the general election laws of the State. All money raised by the sale of bonds shall be used solely and alone for the building, construction or reconstruction of roads of asphaltum, concrete, brick, stone, block, macadam, gravel or other processes of equal merit, and bridges as provided for in Chapter 80 of the Acts of 1914, of the Kentucky Legislature.—E. J. Stair, Judge.

I, S. T. Roper, of the county court, within and for the aforesaid county and State, do hereby certify that the foregoing instrument of writing comprises a true and perfect copy of an order in the matter of holding an election, in Fulton County, Kentucky; upon the proposition whether or not the Fiscal Court of Fulton county shall issue $300,000.00 in bonds for the purpose of building roads and bridges in Fulton County, Kentucky, as same appears of record in my office in order book No. 9, page 156.

Given under my hand at my office in the City of Hickman, Fulton County, Kentucky, this 15th day of April, 1915.—Bailey Huddleston, Sheriff Fulton County, Ky.

The revolver gives a puny man with a 5-inch brain and the pluck of a grasshopper a 100 yard reach and makes him more deadly than a Sioux Indian. There was a time when this country had no dangerous animal, except bears and wolves, and life was safe, except on the frontiers, but now vast hordes of 16-year-old boys who use their skulls for a dime novel bookcase, roam the streets with cigarettes in their face and a portable cannon in their hip pockets, producing outbreaks with the skill and enthusiasm of a cholera microbe, while it is at all times possible to meet a personal enemy who has been chasing you for a week, and who is reluctantly compelled to defend himself when he catches you by filling you so full of lead that your remains will require eight pall bearers.

ENOUGH SIGNATURES TO GUARANTEE CHAUTAUQUA.

All requirements of the Red-path Chautauqua in the way of a contract have been met locally and from this point of view we may say Hickman will have an other chautauqua this year — lasting five days. A committee appointed from the Business League made a canvass and procured the signatures of eighty persons, each of whom guarantees to take two season tickets each in case of a deficit. This was all that was required this year, although the contract was decidedly different last year and far from satisfactory to the few who "held the bag" in making up a very wholesome shortage.

This year, the Chautauqua will come to Hickman under the auspices of the Business League, if it comes.

The advance agent carried a prospectus of the 1915 program. In many respects it is better than last year.

MUST BE STAMPED.

Revenue officers at Memphis last week made a raid on and seized stocks of perfumes, face powders, soaps, and other cosmetics of two drug stores because they were not stamped with revenue stamps.

It has been the impression in this section that articles were to be stamped only as sold, but the action of these officials in the cases mentioned would indicate that all articles subject to tax should be stamped while in stock, and before offered for sale.

The penalty is a severe one and local druggists should take the hint.

COMET NOW VISIBLE.

Folks who go to bed late or early risers have an opportunity to observe a comet at present. It may be seen at 10:40 o'clock at night low on the polar star. It ascends during the night and may be found in the northeast between two and four o'clock a. m. It may be seen best at those hours. The comet is faint, having the brightness of a third magnitude star and has a tail several finger lengths in length. It is really much larger than the famous Halley's comet, but is vastly farther from the earth than Halley's approached four years ago. It may be visible to the naked eye until the middle of November.

Mother.

"All that I am or hope to be," said Lincoln after he had become president, "I owe to my aged mother."

"My mother was the making of me," said Thomas Edison recently. "She was so true, so sure of me and I felt that I had someone to live for, someone I must not disappoint."

"All that I have ever accomplished in life," declared Dwight L. Moody, the great evangelist, "I owe to my mother."

"To the man who has had a good mother, all women are sacred for her sake," said Jean Paul Richter.

The testimony of great men in acknowledgment of the boundless debt they owe to their mothers would make a record stretching from dawn of history to today. Few men, indeed, become great who do not owe their greatness to a mother's love and inspiration.

How often we hear people in every walk of life say, "I never could have done this thing but for my mother. She believed in me, encouraged me when others saw nothing in me."

"A kiss from my mother made me a painter," said Benjamin West.

A distinguished man of today says, "I never could have reached my present position had I not known that my mother expected me to reach it. From a child she made me feel that this was the position she expected me to fill, and her faith spurred me on and gave me a power to attain it."

Many a man is enjoying a fame which is really due to a self-educating, sacrificing mother. People hurrah for the governor or mayor or congressman, but the real secret of his success is often tucked away in that little unknown, unappreciated, unheralded mother. His education and his chance to rise may have been due to her sacrifice.

It is a strange fact that our mothers, the molders of the world, should get so little credit and should be so seldom mentioned among the world's achievers. The world sees only the successful son, the mother is but a round in the ladder upon which he has climbed. Her fame or fame is seldom seen in the papers, only her son is lauded and held up to our admiration. Yet it was the sweet pathetic figure in the background that made his success possible.

There is no one in the average family, the value of whose service begins to compare with those of the mother, and yet there is no one who is more generally neglected or taken advantage of. She must remain at home evenings and look after the children when the others are out having a good time. Her cares never cease. She is responsible for the housework, for the preparation of meals, she has the children's clothes to make or mend, there is company to be entertained, darning to be done and a score of little duties which must often be attended to at odd moments, snatched from her busy days and she is often up working long after everyone else in the house is asleep.

We are defeated in our attempts to make home cheerful and happy because we pay too much and work too hard. We task and weary ourselves so much in the attempt to collect the materials for enjoyment that they give us but little pleasure when collected. Neatness and order are excellent virtues in a family, but they can be carried to excess so as to be a daily torment to everybody in the house. The best clock has the fewest wheels and makes the least noise, and the more simple the order of our domestic life, the better and happier it will be. Live within your means. Make your dress, your house, your furniture, your style of living, such as will not subject you to struggle and anxiety to keep up appearances. Be content to set a poorer table than your rich neighbor, who has a French cook, and be not ashamed of your faded carpet if you cannot afford a new one. Do not mind what the outside world says; this is your business and not theirs. Outside friends and guests must be drawn to our house, not so much by costly dinner services and lavish entertainments, as by the kind and gracious manners of those who give the invitations.

It isn't the amount of religion a man has that makes him good and fits him for heaven; it is the amount he uses. Long prayers and loud professions do not count; but the man who loves his fellow-men and fellowwomen, who ministers to the afflicted and wears a smile for all, including his wife and children, who never smiles on Sunday or kicks the dog when he ought to kick himself, who speaks well of people when their backs are turned, and under all circumstances keeps an even mind—that man doesn't have to die to go to heaven. He gets to feel happy all the time as a matter of habit, and he takes all the dispensation of life with philosophical satisfaction.

Sweet to the human ear is the voice of approbation; dear to the human heart is the music of approving lips. Everybody has burdens, and what we need is the spirit of helpfulness, words of encouragement. We have blamed each other long enough; now let us praise.

THE FOUNTAIN AT THE PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION THAT SYMBOLIZES THE BUILDING OF THE PANAMA CANAL

The labor that went into the building of the Panama canal is symbolized in the Fountain of Energy, by A. Stirling Calder. This heroic sculpture stands in the center lagoon of the South Gardens and faces the main entrance gates. The waters were first released on opening day, February 20, coincidentally with the opening of the portals of the exhibit palaces and by the same means: the electric spark transmitted across the continent when President Woodrow Wilson opened the great exposition at San Francisco by wireless.

Mr. McNeil, a son of Mrs. Mollie Stubbs, is a hustling young farmer, well and favorably known throughout this section.

The Courier joins their many friends in extending congratulations and abundant good wishes.

THE SPOILERS AT THE EMPRESS.

Rex Beach's great novel, "The Spoilers" has been produced in moving pictures in 9 reels, and these great pictures have been secured by the Empress Theatre and will be shown in the next two or three weeks.

This play deals with life in Alaska in the early boom days, a good love story running through the play. Several Hickman people have seen the pictures and asked the Empress to get them. This show gets a much higher price in the city, and it is probable that a higher price will be charged here in order to come out even. But even if you have to pay 50c—which you won't—for reserved seats to see this picture, you will not regret it.

Watch for the date.

Beginning tomorrow at the Empress, will be shown the serial "Who Pays," a series of short stories full of real heart interest in each and every reader. Yes, even you. Nothing you have ever read will make a deeper impression than these Vital, Gripping Experiences from Real Life. Also a special feature for tomorrow, showing Francis X. Bushman in three reels. This actor is the best in his line, and draws big houses all over the country.

For today, The Girl Detective Series, "Thumb Prints on the Safe," and Broncho Billy.

The new Athletic Shirt can be worn athletic or regular style. For comfort they can't be beat. See them at Leibovitz, the "Live Store."

Better clothes values for less money at Leibovitz. It will pay you to investigate.

THE WEATHER

Probably showers tonight and Friday. Not much change in temperature.

Reports are to the effect that children, or possibly grown-ups, unthoughtfully have been pulling flowers in the city cemetery. This is strictly forbidden, as will be observed by a warning posted elsewhere in this issue. Pulling flowers or defacing property in the cemetery is a serious offense, and folks will do well eschew further violations.

Chief Wright will figure on oiling the streets instead of sprinkling them. At the same price, oiling is to be preferred, from what we are able to learn.

Prof. B. F. Gabby, wife and son, Miss Virginia Luten, Miss Mildred Ramage and others are in Louisville this week attending the K. E. A.

FURY OF THE CULBIN SANDS.

Tragic Fate of a Once Fruitful Spot on the Scottish Coast.

Beneath the drifted sands on the west side of Findhorn bay, Scotland, lie what were once sixteen fruitful farms, orchards and a hamlet. There also is buried the mansion house of an ancient family. Now all this is a wild waste, known as the Culbin sands.

The estate was overwhelmed in the year 1691—and in a single night, according to all accounts. From the west a great wind sprang up. It lifted the sand along the coast, gathering force as it drove along, its increasing momentum sweeping great masses of loose sand along with it. This horror, scarcely imaginable, swept with irresistible force down toward the mouth of the Findhorn. It covered the fields and overwhelmed the estate, burying swiftly, beyond hope of respite, the mansion house, farms and village.

A smiling, happy countryside was transformed to a black magic into a wilderness of sand, and today, standing on one of the great mounds, the eye rests on a succession of huge billows of gleaming sand, literally a desert some four miles long by two miles broad, bare as the palm of one's hand of vegetation, the very picture of loneliness and desolation. The titanic strength and suddenness of the strange disaster, the pigmy importance of man before it, seize the imagination. So swift fell the tragedy that, to save his life, a man ran from his plow in the furrow and never saw it again. It was found years afterward and is now in a north country museum, says Chambers Journal.

Some of the bewildered folk managed to get into their houses from the east side next day and rescued a few household goods, but the demon of the storm rose again, and next morning not a vestige of man's handwork was visible. An ocean of sand dashing like spray in the gulf covered the land like a stormy spring tide and when the tide and the sand drift died down a mocking waste had taken the place of the barony of Culbin. And there the miniature desert can be seen today.

Alexander King and the tuckless owner, was ruined. The poor man petitioned the Scots parliament in July, 1695 for a relief from the cess or land tax on a statement that "the best two parts of his estate of Culbin, by an unavoidable fatality, was quite ruined and destroyed, occasioned by great and vast heaps of sand (which had overflowed the same), so that there was not a vestige to be seen of his manor place of Culbin, yards, orchards and meadows thereof, and which within these twenty years were as considerable as many within the county of Moray."

What He Called Her.

"Now, Withe," said the teacher of the primary class, "let us see whether you can tell us the name of this graceful looking animal with the long pronged horns?" Hunters go up into the woods every fall to shoot this beautiful creature. It is very cruel of them to do so, is it not? Can't you tell us what the animal is called? Come, now, think I am sure you know what it is. What does your father call your mother when he comes home at night?"

"He calls her Betty 'cause it plagues her,"—Chicago Herald.

Damascus

Damascus claims with very good reason, to be considered the oldest city in the world. The place remains very much what it was before the days of the patriarch Abraham, an island of verdure set in the Syrian desert, and has martial and sacred associations extending through thirty centuries. According to Josephus, Damascus was founded by Ez, the son of Aram and grandson of Shem. It is first mentioned in Scripture in connection with Abraham, whose steward was a native of that place (Genesis xv, 2).

Patchouli

The odor of patchouli was known in Europe before the material was introduced, in consequence of its use in Kashmir to scent the shawls with a view of keeping out the moths, which are averse to it. The genuine cashmere shawls became known by their scent until the French found out the secret and imported the herb for use in the same way.

The Serbian Colors.

The flag of Serbia is the flag of the Russian merchant service reversed; for, whereas that is white-blue-red, the flag of Serbia is red-blue-white, arranged in three horizontal stripes running across the flag. The royal standard is similar, save that the royal arms are placed in the center of the blue stripe.

POLICE COURT NOTES.

The following cases have been disposed of by Judge Auberg at police court since last report.

Ben Nearn, violating bond of non law, fined $20 and costs.

Ben Nearn, breach of peace, fined $5 and costs.

Bonner Williams, breach of peace, fined $5 and costs.

Tal Crow, same.

One Threlkeld, of the Hickman Bottling Works, was tried yesterday on a warrant charging him with violating local option law, or for selling a certain amount of beer which proved untrue. Ben Nearn, who runs a order joint, testified to selling the bottling works order, and was assessed, who purchased beer from Nearn and went they brought from him was intoxicating. Atty. Powell made out his case in this manner, and succeeded in getting a verdict by the jury against the defendant. He was fined $20. An appeal will be taken by Mr. Threlkeld.

It should be remembered that Engineer Burrell, of Washington, who comes to Fulton county to enlighten us on the subject of gravel roads, has no axe to grind. His salary is just the same whether the proposition is carried or lost. His business is to give the facts. This is what the public should have. A man, who either opposes or approves the gravel road project on his own judgment, must be both civil engineer and financier, or renders his verdict before all the evidence is in. In the absence of a means for getting at the truth, one is justified from a point of safety, in opposing it. But, with the opportunity to learn and the prospect of a great public benefit coming from such knowledge, it is manifestly fair and sensible to avail oneself of such privileges. If in the light of this information, we believe the "game isn't worth the candle," we should have a mild opposition. If we are convinced to the contrary, then let's boost the good roads proposition with a solid front.

If you favor war, dig a trench in your back yard, fill it half full of water, crawl into it and stay there a day or two without anything to eat, get a machine to shoot at you with a brace of revolvers and a machine gun, and you will have something just as good and you will save your country a great deal of expense.

I am especially anxious to show you some of my new $15.00 suits just received. I know I can please you and save you money, too.

ALLIED FLEET RESUMES
DARDANELES OPERATION.

Constantinople, Apr. 21.—The statement issued today by the Turkish war office says:

"It is now definitely known that six torpedo boats attempted to penetrate the Dardanelles Monday night."

There has been no previous announcement of a concerted attempt Monday night by vessels of the allied fleet to run the straits and the above dispatch fails to sufficiently describe the result of the operations.

Berlin, Apr. 21.—The Statia today published a dispatch, the origin of which was not given which says that 20,000 British and French troops have landed at Enos in European Turkey on the north side of the Gulf of Saros. A heavy conflict took place between the Turkish batteries around Enos and the warships of the allies.

A dispatch received here from Athens says that great activity has been noted among the British forces on the island of Lemnos which lies to the west of the entrance to the Dardanelles. Troop transports are arriving daily from Alexandria, Egypt. The censorship is more rigid and all indications point to a strong action against the Dardanelles at an early date.

MARKET BUTTER IN ATTRACTIVE PACKAGES

A Load of Cream at a Southern Creamery.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Most of the surplus butter from the farm in the South is exchanged for groceries at the country store. On account of poor quality, unattractive packages, and irregular supply, the prices received for this butter are very low. Bulletin explaining how the housewife can make good butter and how to put it into attractive packages may be obtained without cost by applying to the department of agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Purchasers of butter like to buy from persons who can furnish it the year round. Usually the market for farm butter is oversupplied during the summer season. This is because cows generally freshen in the spring and thus furnish a greater supply of butter throughout the summer, when grass and green feed are abundant, than at any other time of the year. For this reason the price of butter is lowest in summer and highest in winter. To take advantage of these conditions farmers should have their cows freshen in the fall. This would tend to equalize the supply of butter throughout the year.

In many cases no great effort is made to find a good market for the farm butter. Too often nearby grocery stores are regarded as the only market possibility. Boarding houses, women's clubs, hotels and restaurants, and private families, not only in the home towns but in surrounding towns, should be canvassed and a sample of the butter exhibited. In this way a good market for farm butter may be secured if the butter is of good quality and can be supplied regularly.

The frequency of delivery will depend upon the demand of the trade.

of the largest number of farmers is the creamery. This furnishes a constant demand for cream, whether in large or small quantities. There are three ways of getting cream to the creamery or shipping point:

1. Each farmer may haul his own cream.

2. Farmers in a community may take turns in hauling their cream.

3. A man may be employed to haul all the cream regularly and each farmer may pay for this service according to the amount of cream he sells.

The third method is on the same principle as the rural free delivery of mail matter. Under this system the hauler at regular intervals comes to the farmer's door, gets the cream, and takes it to the creamery or shipping point. The cream is weighed, sampled, and poured into a carrying can in the wagon. The samples and records of weights are sent to the creamery. Routes may be established close to the creamery, and the cream delivered direct, or they may be established at distant points and the cream delivered to a central station for shipping to the creamery. Subroutes may radiate from points on the main route and thus cream can be collected from a wide area.

In communities in which interest in selling cream is just being aroused and where there is not cream enough produced to pay for having it collected each day, the cream can be kept from day to day and collected twice a week in winter and three times in summer. Where this is practiced the farmers must use ice to keep the cream as cold as possible, or place the cans in spring or well water. Unless extra care is taken to produce the cream in the most cleanly manner, and unless it is often the farmer or some member of his family can without inconvenience deliver the butter to the purchasers. When those who have butter to sell can not deliver it to distant purchasers they should investigate the opportunities offered by the parcel post service.

Cream obtained by running the warm whole milk through a cream separator is a very convenient form in which to market the product of cows. Less equipment and labor are required for this method than if butter is made.

For hauling cream it is necessary to have a separator, shipping cans, some appliances for heating water to wash utensils, and some means for cooling the cream.

Cream if not properly taken care of is easily spoiled. Directions for taking the proper care of milk and cream are described in a circular which is sent free by the department of agriculture.

Since the fat is the most valuable part, cream is usually sold according to the pounds of fat it contains. For determining the percentage of fat in cream the Babcock test, which is a simple process, is used. Small samples of cream are tested and the percentage of fat shown is multiplied by the weight of the cream from which the sample is taken. For example, if a sample of cream from a can containing 40 pounds is found to test 25 per cent, the pounds of butterfat are found by multiplying 40 by 0.25, which is ten pounds. The persons buying the cream generally do the sampling and testing.

Hotels, restaurants, railroad eating houses, soda fountains, and ice cream manufactories offer markets for fresh sweet cream. Such markets require a high class product of uniform quality and a dependable supply delivered at regular intervals. This makes it necessary for farmers who supply such markets to have good transportation facilities.

The market for cream within reach kept thoroughly cold at all times, this method is not advisable.

The shipping of cream compels the farmer to have a separator. The cost of the separator is often discouraging to the man who has only two or three cows, and who, but for this expense, could sell a small amount of cream. This, however, need not prevent the purchase of a separator, as some companies sell their machines for a small cash payment, the remainder to be paid in monthly or bi-monthly installments. This enables the farmer to let the cows pay for the separator.

Again, in the case of several farmers living near one another, one separator, centrally located, can be used by all. The central separator offers a splendid opportunity for landowners to encourage their tenants to keep cows. Even if the tenants have only small quantities of milk, it will bring more money in the form of cream than if the milk were churned and the butter sold. Carrying the milk to the separator is also less trouble than making the butter.

In sections where cream can be marketed, routes operated in some such way as described are to be commended, provided the cream is produced and handled properly, as they enable the farmer to procure a steady cash income from his cows by providing a market at his door.

Early Start for Strawberries. Strawberry plants, like fruit trees, should be set at the earliest possible moment in spring. The variety selected should be one that has proved good in your locality. If you experiment with new varieties let it be on a small scale. Remember, too, that the variety recommended as a good shipper is not the best for home use. Some of the most delicious berries are too soft to stand shipping, but cannot be excelled for home consumption.

Incubators Always Ready. Incubators can be kept always in hatching order, but not the hen.

HUMORS OF LAW

We laugh at old Wouter van Twiller.

Whose mode of deciding a case

Was to go by the looks and the weight of the books

Which the lawyers brought into his place.

We jest at his manner of judging

Because it is queer in our eyes

And the erudite way of our jurists today

Show up as decidedly wise

For now they determine on justice

By means that are noble to see.

By a volume misplaced in a proofreader's haste

Or a failure at crossing a "T"

And having thus labored to perfection

To justice sans error or flaw,

Our laughter rings shriller at Wouter van Twiller

And his way of deciding the law

For the first time in several months, Hickman was full of traveling salesmen one day this week. Eighteen came in on one train. This is taken as an indication or forerunner of better business conditions "higher up." Locally, business is getting better; in fact, approaching normal for this season. The present outlook for fall business is indeed rosy, and many are predicting that 1915 will be a record breaker for the U. S. It is a matter of feeding and clothing Europe, which is logically a money-making proposition for us.

THE TRAVELER.

RECENTLY, unknown, nobility, slow

Or by the lazy shepherd wand'ring by

On the old road, where the only Christian

Had been, the traveler, the only saint

Who, through the desert, had come to this

A weary, white, and lonely place

Where'er I came, I found a sign

My heart untroubled, my soul at ease

And to my traveler, the only saint

And drags at each corner a tangle of chains

In all my wanderings, I found this world

Of care, in all my griefs—and God has given me

Still had hopes, my fate I knew not

Amidst these humble towers to lay me

down

To laugh at our life's tapestry at the close

And keep the flame from wasting by remorse

Until I had hopes, for peace at last is useful

Amidst these humble towers to lay me

down

Amidst my fire an evening group to draw

And tell of all I felt and all I saw

And, as a hare, whom hounds and horns

persecute,

Runs to the place from whence at first she flew

I still had hopes, my long vexations

passed

Here to return—and die at home at last.

We have before us quotations on street or road oil, the kind that is used for such streets as Hickman has. The price delivered at Hickman is $4.10 per 100 gallons. The company quoting these prices is the same that is furnishing oil for Union City, and are familiar with this line of work. They say to oil properly one gallon of oil should be used for each two square yards. Streets that have never before been oiled should receive a coat in the spring and one in the fall, after that, one application per year is sufficient. This brings the matter to a point where it is easy enough for us to figure the cost, leasing it on width of your front and one half the width of the street. Both in the matter of service and economy, oiling has proven very satisfactory in other towns using it.

OBITUARY.

GOOD CITIZEN PASSED AWAY.

This section lost a fine citizen Saturday, when death ended the successful and peaceful career of William T. Parham, residing two miles east of Hickman. At 2:30 he breathed his last, a termination of one week's illness, which started with a hard chill, and the announcement of his death came as a great shock to his many friends.

Mr. Parham was born June 11, 1840, at the same place where he peacefully passed away Saturday. In fact, he was born, reared, resided and died at the same old homestead. On Sept. 1, 1867, he was united in marriage with Miss Sallie L. Thomas, by whom he is survived. To this union was born six children, but only three are living—Mrs. J. R. Rainey, of Clarksville, Texas, and Edward and Samuel Parham, of this city, also one brother, Bynum Parham. During the dark and trying days of the 60's, our departed friend served gallantly the cause of the Confederacy under the matchless leader, Gen. Nathan Bedford Forrest, of Forrest Cavalry fame in 7th Ky. regiment, Co. L. At the close of the war he received an honorable discharge and returned to Hickman, where he followed his vocation of farming during the remainder of his life.

Forty years ago Mr. Parham united with the Methodist church. His life has been one long, continuous example of christian manhood. His career has been quiet, unostentatious, well rounded. He was of that unassuming type of manhood which forms the bone and sinew of great nations. His friendships were true and lasting; at heart, he was strong and generous.

Funeral services were conducted at the family residence Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock by Rev. R. M. Walker, and the remains were laid to rest at the family burying ground. A large concourse of relatives and friends were in attendance to pay their last respects.

Jim Bree, of the News-Banner, did a lot of talking in few words in the following item: "England is bullying over us in respect to our maritime commerce precisely as she bullied a little over 100 years ago when she ordered us not to send our products to France and the First Consul had ordered us not to ship our products to England. England feels that her big navy gives her the unquestionable right to dominate or tread on the commercial rights of all other nations. We do not approve the niggardly spirit Congress has shown in the development of our navy. If we had 25 or 30 (and we ought to have big battleships like the Pennsylvania that was recently launched with her first complement of 12 14-inch guns and second battery of 22 5-inch rifles we may feel sure that England would moderate her 'tone' and assume a far different attitude. Congress provided for but two new battleships. We believe that the United States, being the first and foremost nation in the world ought to have the first and foremost navy in the world."

WHEN A QUARTER OF A MILLION OF PEOPLE INAUGURATED THE VAST PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION AT SAN FRANCISCO

Transportation reports show that every state in the United States and most of the nations of the world were represented in the great throng of 250,000 people who inaugurated the Panama-Pacific International exposition at San Francisco on February 20. This picture, showing the mighty South gardens, gives a glimpse of a small fraction of the opening day throng. In the first five days of its progress the exposition had an attendance larger than the combined totals of the Chicago and St. Louis expositions and the ratio continues in a degree to justify predictions of the most spectacular success for the exposition.

Sick Women Attention

Is it possible there is a woman in this country who continues to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial after all the evidence that is continually being published, which proves beyond contradiction that this grand old medicine has relieved more suffering among women than any other one medicine in the world?

We have published in the newspapers of the United States more genuine testimonial letters than have ever been published in the interest of any other medicine for women—and every year we publish many new testimonials, all genuine and true. Here are three never before published:

From Mrs. S. T. Richmond, Providence, R. I.

Providence, R. I.—"For the benefit of women who suffer as I have done I wish to state what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I did some heavy lifting and the doctor said it caused a displacement. I have always been weak and overworked after my baby was born and inflammation set in, then nervous prostration, from which I did not recover until I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The Compound is my best friend and when I hear of a woman with troubles like mine I try to induce her to take your medicine."—Mrs. S. T. Richmond, 84 Progress Avenue, Providence, R. I.

From Mrs. Maria Irwin, Peru, N.Y.

Peru, N.Y.—"Before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was very irregular and had much pain. I had lost three children, and felt worn out all the time. This splendid medicine helped me as nothing else had done, and I am thankful every day that I took it."—Mrs. Maria Irwin, R.F.D. 1, Peru, N.Y.

From Mrs. Jane D. Duncan, W. Quincy, Mass.

SOUTH QUINCY, MASS.—"The doctor said that I had organic trouble and he doctored me for a long time and I did not get any relief. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised and I tried it and found relief before I had finished the first bottle. I continued taking it all through middle life and am now a strong, healthy woman and earn my own living."—Mrs. Jane D. Duncan, Forest Avenue, West Quincy, Mass.
